

VISION:

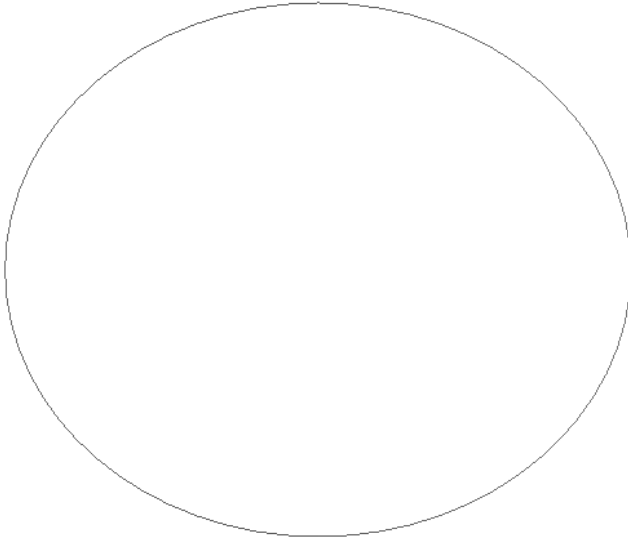

In February of 2006 United Way of Island County introduced 2-1-1 to the local area. 2-1-1 is a free, easy-to-remember phone number that connects people to what they need, whether that means receiving help, or offering it through volunteer time or donations.

By dialing 2-1-1, people will reach a trained information specialist who can help determine the service they need, and refer them to the most appropriate resource among the full range of public and private programs available.

Special Thanks to the Whidbey News-Times for their partnership with the publication of the 2006 Family Resource Guide.

United Way of Island is a collaborative partner for National Night Out, Children's Day and the Island County Youth Forum. Staff also services on the Community Health Advisory Board (CHAB), Community Advisory Board (CAB) with the City of Oak Harbor and the Oak Harbor Police Department, Partners in Children's Early Learning and Family Support Alliance.
